The 2009 "Student Annual Exhibition"

A comprehensive, juried exhibition of work by award-winning current students

Boston, MA (January 26, 2009)—The School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston (SMFA), is pleased to present the 2009 "Student Annual Exhibition," on view in the Anderson Auditorium and Grossman Gallery February 17–March 10, 2009. This juried, multi-media show offers an in-depth exploration of work by current Museum School students.

Throughout the year, Museum School students have the opportunity to participate in a number of competitions—from juried exhibitions to prestigious awards and curatorial opportunities. The "Student Annual Exhibition" showcases the work of these award winners—as well as a variety of other exceptional student work that has been juried into the show—together for the first time. The 2009 Annual includes work by recipients of the 2008 Boit Awards for work created independently over the summer, the 2009 Dana Pond Awards in painting, the 2009 Yousuf Karsh Prize in photography, the 2009 Will and Elena Barnet Award in painting, and the 2009 Stella and Sumner Cooper Award for work in metals, glass, and ceramics.
